ESSAY BY MISS TOLA BARNES, TRENTON, KY.

Just come and look out of the window Rose, And take your first glance at our town, Don't you wish you could see Trenton beaux, From Mr. Jim Chesnut down.

There he stalks up the Elkon lane, With calm and majestic tread, Mind! 'Twill give your eyes a terrible strain, To look from his heels to his head.

There's Henry Maynard, "Handsome" you say? Well you certainly agree with him, Don't you wish you could see Trenton beaux, From Mr. Jim Chesnut down.

Ah! he looks neat, sweet, slim and trim.

That's Sammie Steger just over the way, He's awfully lovely I know you'll say, But, Rose, I have one request to make: If you don't want his poor little heart to break Don't fall in love with Sam, I pray.

His conscience is heavy now for the sake Of the hearts he smashes every day, I'm afraid if you fall in love with him too He'll attempt some desperate penance to do.

There's Hal McChesney, I'm afraid of him, He always looks so horribly grim, He never looks at us poor girls, At the brightest eyes, or the longest curls, He lives on lemons, I'll bet this glove, Or else the poor fellow's been crossed in love.

Yes that was Bud Byars who just now passed? Oh please! I wanted to save him till the last. For the rest, poor men! will seem ugly no more, Since you've had the pleasure of gazing on Bud.

He's the beauty and pride of this little place, I think he should have a nice glass case, To keep the dust from his handsome face.

But perhaps you'll prefer a boy with light hair, All right! I can suit you to a T. We have them in all styles, dark or fair, And please as you are certainly bound to be, With Cole Dickinson over there, If you don't think he's handsome you must be blind.

He's a lovely specimen of his kind, You think he's handsome? Well I differ from you, I'm just a little bit inclined to think Bud the handsomer of the two.

As I that is John Dickinson, Cole's brother, A splendid fellow altogether, If you don't think he's nice you've lost your wits.

We're all scheming for jobs, o' drives this season.

And to get on the good side of John, my dear, For we're more nice turnouts than any fellow here.

That boy who looks as if he were mad, Is Will Chiles, an intellectual lad, Who goes to college a five months session, And makes such exceedingly rapid progress.

That the next five months they have to make him stay at home and let his class overtake him.

He has a cousin, Henry, whom I wish you could see, But I don't know where the chap can be, He heard that his girl was to wed another, And so he's concluded that he'd get further, And he's gone to a lodge free from human interference.

In some wilderness vast and in its seclusion, He mourns from the depths of his heart heretofore: "Ah! woe is me! You let me go!"

And that fellow yonder is Jimmie Center, He used to be so nice I sit right next winter, His smile has lost something of its grace, He wears a sad look on his handsome face, His manner is not near so brisk as of yore, And he's almost forgotten to frown any more, But that habit hasn't quite forsaken him, For Jim without frowning would cease to be Jim.

There's our champion jumper, Leo Guyan is his name, Our sweet little Lee of gymnastical fame, I know of one thing that jumped higher than Lee, And that is the horrible, high leaping flea, There's the cow that jumped over the moon it is true, But I never could believe that story, could you?

There's Mr. Ford. He has cut out of us, And I don't see why it should be thus, Why should he let us waste our art, In trying to reach his hardened heart? Because one girl marries is no reason why, He should leave all the rest to pine and sigh, I can't see why he don't like the girls, can you? I think it's just too mean yes, I do.

Mr. Moore there is of a different turn of mind, For he is very much inclined, When he succumbs to a girl's fascinations, To admire all of her relations, But that's most as bad for us as before, For unless you're a Dickinson you will not please Mr. Moore.

He thinks that family the nicest and best, There's our member of course, he likes more than the rest, And if he doesn't make her his bride, He'll be quite certain to commit suicide!

That chap holding the cane with the ivory handle, Is a nice little boy by the name of George Randle, He's pleasant and nice and all that it is true, But I have a piece of advice for you, Don't ever go with him to drive, He'll turn you over if you do, Into a piano-box, sure's you're alive! 'Tis a trait of his, I can prove it to you.

John Wood is like him in that respect, Though kind to the ladies and circumspect, One night last winter I recollect, He was driving one of his own double teams, And being rather demented it seems, He drove right into another one square, And my countryman! what a crash was there, Where's he now? He's quit keeping a lively stable, That smash broke him up so he wasn't "plenty able," And now he's concluded it will not do, To be a lover and a liveryman too.

You say is that little fat man a preacher? Well, no yet, but I think the dear creature, Ifracting to be one sometime in the future.

It is Cross Wood, John's brother a remarkable man.

Of trading in horses, and that is as follows: He'll offer a man, well, say two hundred dollars For his horse and pay the money cash down If the man will consent to leave the town. Strange isn't it? Well I'll have to say, It's just in some cases he trades that way.

If he did such business altogether, His smash-up would be worse than that of his brother.

And that gentleman over there in the shade Is the stubborn preacher who wouldn't trade, He either prizes his horse very much, Or the attraction that holds him in Trenton is such

That he can't be persuaded to go away And leave Mr. Wood to gain the day.

There's L. H. Arnold, intellectually inclined, A model of gravity and sobriety, But of late we're afraid he's not in his right mind.

He will patronize the sewing society, It grieves us much, for he shows his insanity By indulging in such feminine vanity, As aprons and dresses and things of that kind, But I think he always seems to find That they do not fit, so he often goes "To have the dress-maker refit his clothes."

There's George Yost; he's one I don't know, It's not because I don't want to though, But notwithstanding that it's leap year, I've not made any advances for fear I might possibly give the poor fellow a fright, For he looks as if he thought girls would bite.

That young looking boy under the tree Is Frank J. Runyon, our "cute" M. D.

"The Old Reliable,"

M. FRANKEL & SONS!

See him tip his hat! O doesn't he look sweet?

At that girl on the other side of the street? And that man beside him plying a fan

Is our undertaker and a newspaper man. He and Frank have adopted the partnership plan.

He pays the doctor percentage you see, On each poor chap he plants 'neath the willow tree.

He writes for the newspaper too, my dear, So if you happen to die while you're here

Don't you wish you could see Trenton beaux, From Mr. Jim Chesnut down.

But will put your name in the paper next day.

But ah! Rose, there used to be one more Who brightened our framework of yore,

The brightest star that ever yet, In brightest glory shone, has set!

And we, poor hearts, sigh in vain regret, The only dude we ever had.

Has gone and left us 'lone and sad. Rose when you go to Clarksville this summer, Give my love to the Clarksville bummer,

Who once brightened Trenton by his smile serene, He will be in our memory forever green—

Oh! his memory'll ever be green, I mean.

And now I think you have seen them all, Ugly and handsome, great and small,

And if you agree at all with me, You think they're all as sweet as can be.

For while I cannot exactly say That they are perfect in every way

I can declare with a right good will, "With all their faults we love them still."

GALLAGHER'S RANCH, TEX.

May 26th 1884.

ED. SOUTH KENTUCKIAN:

In my last I said that I would say something of the farming interest in this portion of the state. The climate forbids the cultivation of most any kind of crops, as the seasons are very irregular, rains sometimes fall in torrents flooding the valleys and threatening ruin to fences and houses; then will the clouds disperse and the land be baked by the parching heat of the sun and continued motion of the wind. This would of itself prevent farming, but added to this the rugged surface of the country makes farming a failure. The people claim that they have found the key and unlocked the long barred door that has hitherto prevented a successful enterprise. Through this door they have driven thousands of goats, an animal that subsists on leaves and buds of low shrubbery—an animal that ventures where other domestic animals dare not go—yea they delight to scale the most rugged hill and frolic on some projecting rock.

Capitalists from England, New York, New Orleans and other cities are investing thousands in goat ranches which are bought for merely a song—I have visited several that number five thousand acres and with amusement watched the movements of those playful animals.

The beautiful Alamo city—San Antonio supplies this portion of Texas—is a city of continued novelty as it represents all the nationalities of the world. Situated on a plain, a beautiful stream entwines fine stone mansions, instead of squares as our cities and the plazas, a Mexican mode of building cities, makes it an imposing sight.

TODD COUNTY.

A DRAMATIC SCENE.

A Texan Ranger Reveals How Gen. Kaemmerling's Life Was Spared at Chickamauga.

A scene of a highly dramatic nature developed at the reunion of the Ninth Ohio Regiment, at Phoenix Hill on Sunday, and created quite a sensation among those who happened to be witnesses to it. The little episode shows that amidst the confusion and turmoil of war and the manifold horrors of the battle-field, the better part of human nature sometimes asserts itself. Gen. McCook had been left on the field, and Gen. Kaemmerling was chosen commander of the regiment. During the second battle of Chickamauga, the Ninth Ohio marched through a corn-field in order to take up a more secure position in a forest. They met with rather a warm reception, and the bullets of the Texas Rangers flew thick and fast. Suddenly the horse of the commander was seen to stagger, and in falling, bury the General beneath him. A few minutes, and he was extricated from his perilous position and it was then found that a well aimed bullet had torn one of the arteries in the horse's neck and death occurred within a very short time. The General did not give any thought to the incident, and it slipped his memory, only to be recalled to his mind after the lapse of twenty years. After the veterans of the Ninth had arrived at Phoenix Hill, a tall man, with clear cut features and a peculiar nervousness about him was noticed in the crowd, and as if in great anxiety looking at everyone of the newly arrived strangers. Suddenly he halted Capt. Gen. A. Schultz and inquired after Gen. Kaemmerling.

"The General is with us," was Capt. Schultz's answer "and later on I'll take pleasure in introducing you to him."

This did not seem to satisfy the man, for he betrayed great anxiety and a shadow of disappointment settled on his face. He insisted on an immediate introduction and at last begged with tears in his eyes, his voice tremulous with emotion.

"Very well, then; come along," called out Captain S. and the old Commander was soon found.

"General, allow me to introduce to you Comrade Hendricks, an old soldier who fought at Chickamauga, although on the other side.

With this remark of Capt. Schultz the General extended his hand to welcome the former enemy with the heartiness of a soldier's grasp. But to the utter astonishment of all present Hendricks, who was fairly trembling with excitement, fell on his knees and began kissing the General's hands.

"General," he burst forth, "do you remember your charge through a cornfield at Chickamauga, where your horse was shot through the neck and killed? Well sir I am the man who fired the shot. I could have killed you, and in fact had already taken aim at your head, but momentarily it flashed across my brain that you might have loved ones at home, and I abandoned the thought of a private thing of their father. I killed your horse in order to destroy your usefulness as an officer for the time being, and I was satisfied."

The man was choking with emotion and the General lost no time in raising him from his unsoldierly posture and extending to him a true and upright greeting. A conversation with the soldier developed the fact that he had certainly spoken the truth for the details of the incidents at Chickamauga were given by Hendricks with astonishing correctness. He even remembered the color of the horse of Gen. Kaemmerling. The Ninth Ohio would have lost its commander then and there had it not been for a soft spot in the heart of a Texas Ranger.

TILDEN DECLINES.

There is no longer any doubt as to the course of Hon. Sam'l J. Tilden. He has addressed a letter to the chairman of the Democratic state committee of New York positively declining to allow his name to be presented to the Chicago convention. He says he has not the physical strength to assume the task and closes his patriotic and statesmanlike communication in the following language:

"Having given to the welfare of the Democratic party and the Republic, whatever of health and strength I possessed, and having reached the limit of my capacity for such labors as their welfare now demands, I but submit to the will of God in deeming my public career forever closed."

SAMUEL J. TILDEN.

Ben Butler's friends claim that the Greenback ticket of Butler & West will carry Maine, Massachusetts and Michigan.

The schooner Six Brothers was lost off the coast of New Foundland, Tuesday, and the captain and thirteen men were drowned.

Congressman Calkins, of Indiana, thinks Bayard & McDonald would be the strongest ticket in his state the Democrats could nominate.

Gen. Brabin, of the U. S. Army, who is in Idaho this week, reports that he crossed the Rockies from Montana, June 3rd, and found the snow still several feet deep and the weather very cold.

Geo. Wm. Curtis, Carl Schurz and other Independent Republicans have called a meeting at New York for next Tuesday to make a protest against Blaine's nomination and volunteer suggestions to the coming Democratic Convention.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher says he will not vote for Blaine and that he will vote for Cleveland if the Democrats nominate him. He prefers a Democrat to such a man as Blaine, whom he does not think a "decent Republican."

The meanest thing we have ever heard of Col. Wolford's being guilty of is his trying to make the public believe that Blaine was born in Kentucky. Kentucky has enough to answer for, without having to bear Pennsylvania's responsibilities.

Ex-Senator McDonald and Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, have been interviewed and both say Blaine cannot possibly carry Indiana. Arthur & Gresham would have been the strongest ticket in the Hoosier state. Indiana will go Democratic.

If Bayard should be nominated by the Democrats, as he very likely will be, what an alternative lot of candidates we shall have in Bayard, Blaine and Butler! They will be the big busy bees that improve each shining hour, and the clover crop is unusually fine this year.—Louisville Times.

Last Monday was Flower Mission day at the Frankfort penitentiary and the convicts were all presented with button-hole bouquets by a committee of ladies. A prominent New Yorker would probably be gratified if the whole county, including the Democratic party, would engage in a "Flower" Mission from now until the 15th of November.

An old gentleman here claims that Gen. John A. Logan was born at the Darsh house, a mile from Stanford, Ky., and that he is a nephew of the pioneer Logan, who formerly owned this entire section. All other accounts, however, give Illinois as his birth place, three years after his father came over from Ireland.—Interior Journal.

The minority of the Sherman Senate Committee, which was appointed to investigate the riot at Danville Va., has made a report which concludes by calling attention to the fact that while the Ohio Senator was investigating the cause of the death of four disorderly negroes in a crowd of 200, bloodshed, murder and arson were running riot in his own city (Cincinnati) during which more than fifty persons were killed, one hundred wounded and $1,000,000 worth of property destroyed.

Judge Robt. Riddell was nominated for Judge of the Court of Appeals at the Winchester convention Tuesday, on the 17th ballot. The protracted deadlock was broken by the withdrawal of Scott and Kendall and the last ballot stood: Riddell, 92; Moore 75. The nominee is not a popular man and Judge Hargis, whom he is to succeed, openly declares that he will stump the district for the Republican candidate on account of Riddell's alleged treatment of late Judge Reid.

A Blaine Revolt.

There is a large proportion of the better class of Republicans all over the country, but more especially in the east, who refuse point-blank to support Mr. Blaine, their party nominee. Their reasons are that he is a corrupt, unscrupulous politician, who would represent the worst element of chronic office-seekers and whose fierce and partisan prejudices would make him not only an unpopular executive, but an unsafe man to shape the policy of the country, both at home and abroad. He possesses a fiery, impetuous disposition that would never permit him to offer conciliation to his opponents or accord justice to his political adversaries. He would be a bitter partisan and his high-handed course of revenge and reward would unsettle the business interests of the country. This is no Democratic estimate of Mr. Blaine. It is the candid opinion of men of his own party. These Republicans recognized the fact that Mr. Blaine could not carry New York, a state essential to Republican success, and a large delegation headed by Geo. William Curtis, the great editor of Harper's Weekly, went to Chicago and warned the Convention not to nominate Mr. Blaine. This note of warning was unheeded and the result has been this formidable revolt in the party ranks against the nominee. It is not confined to a few kickers, but it includes a dozen or more large daily newspapers in the doubtful states, which means certain defeat for the Republican ticket.

The New York Times, the leading Republican paper of New York, having a circulation embracing 100,000 independent voters, has declared its violent opposition and is not only working against Blaine but will support the Democratic nominee, if he be a good man.

Add to this the Commercial Advertiser, the Evening Post, the Herald, the News and the Telegram, all staunch Republican dailies that have openly rebelled and what hope can the Republicans have of carrying New York? Nor is this all. The great Harper's Weekly, whose editor was a delegate to the convention and refused on the floor of the Convention to pledge his support to Blaine, will support the Democratic nominee and spare no effort to defeat Blaine. Another powerful opponent the "Plumed Knight" will have to encounter will be Puck, the independent cartoon paper that has already given Blaine a national stigma as "the tattooed man" that will stick to him through the campaign.

Massachusetts is another doubtful state and with the Boston Advertiser, the Transcript and the Herald working against Blaine and the Journal pursuing a do-nothing policy, the party is left practically without a representative organ in Boston. Not only is this the case, but the great Reform club, of Boston, composed largely of Republicans has adopted the following scathing resolution: "The Massachusetts Reform Club regard the nomination of Blaine and Logan by the Republican party as a distinct and unqualified refutation of all its professions of reform and as an insult to the conscience of the country, and that the members of the club will under no circumstances support them."

And the opposition is not confined to the cities of New York and Boston. The following additional list of independent and Republican papers have openly committed themselves against the ticket: Brooklyn Union, Rochester Post-Express, Rochester Herald, Syracuse Herald, Flushing Times, Springfield (Mass.) Republican, Philadelphia Record, Philadelphia Times, Chicago Times, Chicago News, and New Haven News. These are all dailies and the leading organs of the party in the east. They all give strong and potent reasons for their opposition.

The New York Herald says Blaine is "utterly conscienceless—a coward who would speak any falsehood to carry a point."

The New York Times says: "The convention was a scene of triumph for Blaine Republicans, a triumph as boundless as space. It was the complete abandonment of wild intoxication, with no thought for the terrible next morning. The next morning has come gentlemen. How do you like it? Your party is rent in twain. The East is cut off from the West. Maine is a political island. New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York and Indiana have been turned over to the Democrats, if the Democrats will keep sober enough under their good luck to put in a respectable candidate. Independent Republicans refuse the party their support and are planning a conscience nomination. Defeat and perhaps dissolution stare the Republican party in the face. The thinking Blaine leaders are sobered—some of them are appalled—by the proportions and character of the revolt. The Blaine masses, whose warm hearts have run away with their heads, will be slower to see the consequences of the step they have taken. But they will see them and regret the step. The Times sincerely hopes that their vision may be made clearer, their hearts set right again, and their Republicanism be purified by the trials they have invited and the repentance which will come later."

There is no doubt as to what will be the result of this opposition. It affords the Democrats a great opportunity. With a good ticket pledged, to reform, success is assured. Tilden, McDonald, Bayard, Cleveland, Thurman, Flower, Morrison, Carlisle, Payne, Hooley or any other good Democrat can carry New York and Indiana and other doubtful states. Let wisdom govern the action of the Democratic convention next month and victory will perch upon our banners in November.

POLITICAL POINTS.

The New York Commercial Advertiser (Rep.) calls attention to the fact John A. Logan denounced John Brown—whose soul, all good Republicans believe, is still marching on—"a traitor, thief and scoundrel."

Rob't T. Lincoln said to a gentleman a few years since, when visiting Springfield, Ill., in substance, that the greatest calamity that could befall the Republican party or the American people, would be the nomination and election of James G. Blaine to the Presidency.—Ex.

Blaine and Maine is a rhyme that will henceforth be tabooed in that office. If any poet feels his soul afire with burning thoughts which he is anxious to see conflagrating the world, so to speak, through the shining Sun, let him heed this injunction. This is solemnly meant, and it goes.—Cincinnati Sun.

The Springfield Republican closes an article on the nomination of Blaine and Logan as follows: "These nominations are revolutionary. They are such as the Republican party has never before presented, and will carry dismay and alarm to thousands of men who have regarded this as the party of safety, of integrity, of principle and of high moral ends. They portend deserved disaster and defeat to the Republican party, and a revolution in the national Administration."

The New York Evening Post openly bolts the nomination as does the Boston Herald, both of them expressing the opinion that with Cleveland or Bayard at the head of the ticket the Democrats will have an easy victory. Blaine's friends claim that they were prepared for these factions, and that they will concentrate their forces in the west, where they expect to make large gains. They start out by conceding New York to the Democrats.—Evansville Courier.

On the 22nd of May, the heavy-editorial writer of the Globe Democrat, a Republican journal in good standing, sat him down and wrote: "Blaine cannot carry the full strength of the Republican party to begin with and his repulsive, rotten record will repel the independent or detached voters. He is an unclean man, and the people will not have him. To nominate him would be to court defeat. He stands self-convicted of prostituting the high offices he has held to build up a private fortune, of cohabiting with corruption for dishonest money. Oh, no; his record would damn him." On the night of the 6th of June, the same writer sat down again, and this time he wrote: "Blaine is the embodiment now of those beliefs and hopes, those doctrines and purposes, by virtue of which the party has achieved all its glories in the past, and upon which depend all its chances of prolonged existence and usefulness." Writing for a newspaper is easy enough when you know how.—Courier-Journal.

H. G. Vennor, the Canadian weather prophet, is dead at the age of 34 years. If anybody wants to say that he was a Vennor-able young man we will pause a moment to give him a chance.

WE DON'T LIKE TO DO BUSINESS THIS WAY,

But since it has been generally adopted by the reliable firms in New York, Chicago and St. Louis, we feel it our duty fall in line, and will do better than any of them. We propose to take the lead for LIBERALITY and GENEROSITY. We have not only in view the pleasure of the man or the delight of the boy, but the comfort of the working and laboring man, and the poor widow with fatherless children receives our attention. Here is what we propose to do. From now on until further notice, we will give to every cash purchaser of goods (in another one of our four departments) to the amount of $12 or over, the choice of

And in this connection we desire to state that our prices remain unchanged. Even those goods that were marked down to cost go with the balance; and we also guarantee our prices to be as low as same class of goods can be bought anywhere in the Southwest on day of sale. Just think! We sell a genuine SAWYER Suit for $10, the same Suit that every house in Louisville is asking $15 for. And then we have stacks of Men's Suits from $5 up. This will cost a heap of money, but we are willing to sacrifice it for the benefit it will do us hereafter. Remember, a WATERBURY WATCH, CLOCK OR LOAD OF COAL with a $12 CASH PURCHASE.

Mr. Jno. Feland, Jr., has taken a position with Jas. Pye & Co.

Mrs. Wyatt, of Hickman, is visiting her sister, Mrs. S. T. Fox.

Capt. and Mrs. C. D. Bell, of Longview, were in the city Wednesday.

Mr. Jarred Crabb, of Lexington, is at home on a visit to his parents.

Father Time is the correct standard for this latitude at M.D. Kelly's.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Williams, of Pembroke, were in the city yesterday.

Mrs. J. D. McPherson is visiting her parents at Madisonville this week.

Mrs. B. F. Popper, of Kirkmansville, is visiting the family of Rev. J. T. Barrow.

Miss Bessie Chilton, of Pembroke, was in the city Wednesday, visiting friends.

Miss Jennie Hamilton, of Roaring Springs, is visiting Miss Mattie Johnson.

Miss Katie Ulrich, who taught a dancing school here last year, is at the Phoenix Hotel.

Our young friend, Mr. F. M. Dulin, of Kirkmansville, was in the city Wednesday and paid us a call.

Mr. C. M. Russell, of Shelbyville, Ky., has accepted a position as foreman of the South Kentucky office.

Mrs. S. E. Barbee, of South Christian, left for Mecklenburg county, Va., yesterday to be absent several months.

The many friends of Mr. J. B. Richards will be glad to know that he is out again after a severe spell of sickness.

The Pink Tea at Mr. Clarence Anderson's, announced for this evening, has been postponed until next Tuesday evening.

Mr. Geo. W. Gibson has resigned his position as salesman with James Pye & Co., and accepted a similar one with Dabney & Bush.

Misses Antonia Hodge and Lena Hart, left last Saturday morning for Hopkinsville, where they will visit friends. The latter will also visit in Owensboro before returning home.—Henderson Reporter.

Mr. C. C. Slaughter, who acquitted himself with great credit in Vanderbilt University this session, has returned home and accepted a position for the summer with Messrs. Gish & Garner. He will return and enter the graduating class in the fall.

Prof. Sovey and family, of Nashville, arrived in the city this week and are stopping at the Burbridge House. Prof. Sovey has been employed by the Hopkinsville Cornet Band to give them instructions and will be here for several months.

Prof. Jas. E. Scooby.

Prof. Jas. E. Scooby, late of Murfreesboro, Tenn., has been elected to fill the chair of Philosophy, Logic and English Literature, in South Kentucky College. He will also be Vice-President and have charge of the boarding department. Maj. Crumbaugh and the Board of Trustees are to be congratulated upon so valuable an acquisition to the faculty. The following reference is from the Murfreesboro News:

Thursday morning, after conferring the degrees upon the graduates of Haynes Institute, Prof. Scooby tendered to the trustees his resignation as Principal of that school. He made a short address bidding farewell to his trustees, teachers and pupils. He will take charge of a school at Hopkinsville, Ky., next September. In losing Prof. Scooby, Murfreesboro loses one of the best educators of little girls and young ladies in this country. For thirteen years he has had charge of his school here and, as a principal or as a teacher, this people, with one accord, pronounce him a success. Wherever he may go in after life, he may be sure that he carries with him the very best wishes of us all. And he has made himself popular not only as a school teacher, but as a man, as a Christian and as a preacher. His life, it seems to the writer, has been as pure and as Christian as a man's life could have been. The esteem in which he is held here could not be better evidenced than by the tears shed and the sorrow expressed when he made his farewell address yesterday. That he may be abundantly blessed in all his future life, is the earnest prayer of his father and mother in the county.

In an election for school trustees, at Russellville, only 37 votes were cast.

The Public Schools close today. The session has been the most successful one in the history of the schools.

Mr. Geo. Knight, the new postmaster at Organnette has an advertisement in this issue and wants every subscriber to read it.

The dead body of a newly born colored child was found lying in the gutter, near the suburbs of the city, on Clarksville street, yesterday morning.

Remember the musical concert at the Opera House this evening. A pleasant entertainment is promised and a good attendance is expected. Tickets at Gish & Garner's at only 15 cents.

The Hopkinsville Cornet Band is now taking a thorough course of instruction from an accomplished musician and the members will spare no pains nor expense to become thoroughly proficient. The band is already a very creditable one but the boys intend to qualify themselves fully and make their band the pride of the city. They deserve the kindest consideration and most substantial encouragement from our citizens.

The examinations of the Colored Public School have been in progress all this week at the school building. They will be concluded this afternoon at three o'clock, at which time all dresses will be expected from the trustees and other friends who may be present and prizes will be awarded to the two pupils standing the best examinations. The colored people have reason to feel proud of their school. Prof. W. L. Cansler, the superintendent, and his corps of teachers, have manifested their fitness and qualifications and the school is in a very prosperous and encouraging condition. The children of Hopkinsville, both white and colored, enjoy very superior educational facilities.

We call attention of our readers to an advertisement of the Chicago Cottage Organ Company, in another column, and take pleasure in recommending to the public a company whose organs have attained a wide reputation for their superior musical qualities, artistic beauty and general excellence. This company ranks among the largest and best in the United States, having a capacity for manufacturing 800 organs per month, and its organs are shipped to nearly every habitable portion of the globe. The members composing the firm of the Chicago Cottage Organ Company are men of experience, integrity, skilled in their line, conduct their business on an economical, safe and equitable basis, and we predict for the "Chicago Cottage Organ" a brilliant future.

Military Entertainment.

Company D, 3rd Regiment, K. T. G., having been organized two years on the 20th inst., will celebrate its anniversary by giving an entertainment on that evening at the Ringgold consisting of the following programme:

1. Company drill in full dress uniform.
2. Competitive drill between first and second platoon—prize to winning platoon, silver urn, subject to challenge of the defeated platoon at any time.
3. Competitive drill in manual of arms—prize, silver cup, to be held as individual property.
4. Bayonet exercise by non-commissioned officers.
5. Most graceful lady skater—prize silver cup.
6. Awarding of prizes.
7. Concluding with the celebrated barrel race—prize $1, four entries required.

After the above programme all parties wishing to skate can do so. Price of Admission 25 cents; Children under 12 years of age 15 cents; use of skates 25 cents.

Music for the evening will be furnished by the Hopkinsville brass band. Proceeds of entertainment to go to uniform fund. Our citizens should feel an interest in the success of the local military organization and the company should be encouraged by a large attendance.

Seeman's Gift Show.

Baron Seeman will begin a three nights' engagement at the Opera House Monday night. He is one of the most widely known and successful prestidigitators in the country and he is greeted with crowded houses wherever he goes. He filled an engagement in this city a year or two ago and his wonderful performances and optical illusions filled his audience with wonder and delight. He has improved his show, having added a new and original feature. Every person who attends will be furnished with a check at the door and a number of valuable gifts will be distributed at the close of the performance each evening. Tickets now on sale at Gish & Garner's. Admission 50 cents; gallery 25 cents.

OUR TRIP TO THE INTERIOR.

A Visit to LaFayette and Other Points of Interest.

A South-Kentuckian representative left the city Tuesday morning via the Horseback Route, for a trip to the interior of Christian county. The reporter being almost a stranger in a strange land felt the pangs of solitude while wending his lonely way along the road, but this bad feeling was soon dispelled on arriving at the thriving village of Bennettstown where he was met by the citizens and entertained in magnificent style. This village is prospering and the people all wore a smile, childlike and bland, over the prospect of a good crop this season. The reporter wending his way onward, passes through Mason's Mill and finds the people all busy as bees. Thence he pursues his course and arrives at the flourishing town of LaFayette and is, by her prosperous and generous citizens, met with open arms and given the freedom of the city, as it were. Here he found the citizens and merchants all on the "go," simply from the fact that they are firm believers in a good display of printer's ink, and knowing the Kentuckian to be the best medium in the county to display their wares responded Noble-y. All in all LaFayette is a live town and her people are enterprising and generous to a fault. Passing on, your scribe soon leaves the town in the distance. And a little farther on the village of Beverly looms up, as it were. Here the people were almost too busy to talk, but knowing the Kentuckian to be their friend they all smiled and reported everything in good shape in the neighborhood. Once more the scribe drives the reluctant spurs into the charger's sides and speeds to the village of Organnette, where he finds all in good humor and all stated to the scribe that they would have "oodles" of "tobacco" this year. After leaving here the scribe fell in with our next sheriff, John Boyd, and like Dante said to Virgil, "Here John, I appoint you my guide and master for the balance of this trip." John accepted the office with a smile and landed the care and horsework scribe safely in the office, after a hard journey of forty eight hours, badly shaken up. WING.

Suicide of Gen. Buford.

Gen. Abe Buford, of Louisville, committed suicide at Danville, Ind., last Monday. He was a guest at the house of B. T. Buford and the following note was left on a table in his room:

"Danville, Ind., Monday, A. M.—B. T. Buford—Dear Sir: Be not frightened. I have no home to go to and prefer death to any further struggle with life. My cross is too heavy; I can't keep it out of the dust. Send my body to my brother, J. H. Buford, Lexington, Ky., and may God have mercy on my bewildered soul. My troubles and those of my unfortunate brother Tom have driven me mad."

A. Buford.

Beside the above letter was the following: "My financial troubles have driven me to despair; have lost my only chance to retrieve my unfortunate brother and self, and the future is too dark for me to struggle against any further. I want my body sent to Lexington, Ky. My friends there will put it away long side of my dear wife and boy. Peace to all the world, and may God have mercy on my troubled soul."

A. Buford.

Gen. Buford's story is told in his own words above. He had been boarding at the Standford Hotel for some time having lost everything including his stock farm "Bosque Bonita." He was a noted turfman and had bred many fine horses and was attending the Danville races when he killed himself. He was a graduate of West Point and served through the Mexican war and was a Brigadier Gen. in the Confederate army and did gallant service. He was 64 years old and a brother of Col. Thos. Buford, who killed Judge Elliott.

Mr. J. S. Rogers, who was recently elected President of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co., has resigned and Mr. M. H. Smith, of Louisville, has been elected to the position. Mr. Smith has been managing Vice-President for some time.

GARRETSBURG, KY.

June 10th, 1884.

SOUTH-KENTUCKIAN:
On Saturday night, the 31st inst., the negroes of this community had a "supper" at the house of Emmett Moore, (col), near Garrettsburg.

During the evening as Andrew Penick (col) was talking to "Sissy Morris," a sable damsel, George Moore came up and ordered Penick to give up his seat. Upon Penick's refusal to comply with so peremptory a command, Moore drew a 42 caliber "Bull Dog" revolver and fired on Penick, the ball striking him in the breast and ranging around to the side. The wound was quite painful though not fatal, and the negro is now able to walk about a little. Have not heard what legal steps have been taken against Moore, but he certainly merits severe punishment. Some rigorous measures should be employed to stop this promiscuous shooting, and there is no remedy for such crimes except a decisive blow at the root of the evil.

The law against carrying concealed deadly weapons is a perfect farce as enforced in this section, and there is rarely an assemblage of negroes here without some pistol-shooting or razor-cutting. If the law is not rigidly enforced against these crimes, human life will be in a short time very unsafe and those who would like to obey the law will be obliged to violate it by going armed in self-defense. Now, the honest, law-abiding citizen is at the mercy of the scoundrel and knows not when he may be shot down. Let the law be executed or else let it be repealed, thereby placing all classes upon an equal footing.

About ten days ago Mr. Dudley McClendon had his kitchen, together with all of his tableware and cooking utensils, destroyed by fire. The cause of the fire is not positively known, but is supposed to have originated from a spark falling from the stove into a pile of inflammable trash on the floor. Mr. McClendon seems to be unfortunate, as he some years ago lost his house and nearly everything in it by fire. He is a man of indomitable energy, however, and is never discouraged by reverses.

On Friday last Miss Mollie Buckner celebrated the close of her school at "Woodside Academy" by giving a grand picnic. The day was very unpropitious and a considerable rain fell early in the morning, nevertheless quite a nice crowd attended to partake of the abundant dinner that had been prepared for the occasion.

The day was pleasantly spent by all present and everybody went home feeling that it was well for him that he had been there.

Miss Buckner has been teaching for more than a year at "Woodside Academy" and has given entire satisfaction to her patrons.

A few persons from this neighborhood, including CAMILLE, went over to Bethel Church on last Friday night to witness the closing exercises of Miss Mattie Buckner's school, but owing to inclemency of the weather, the exhibition was postponed until last Saturday night.

Your correspondent was not present, though he heard that the exercises were very entertaining. One young man went so far as to say the entertainment was the best that he had ever seen, not excepting college commencements.

Mr. Dudley McClendon, overseer of the Palmyra road, near Garrettsburg, deserves praise for the manner in which he lately worked his portion of the road. He has bestowed more labor on his road than has any other overseer between Garrettsburg and Hopkinsville, in fact he is the only one of them who does not richly merit an indictment by the Grand Jury.

Mr. LaFayette Wilkins has recently had a new roof put on his residence and other improvements made which add greatly to the appearance of his house.

A few days ago a fine mule belonging to Mr. J. J. C. McKnight severely snuggled itself. Do not know the particulars of the accident but hope the result may not be serious.

Miss Mary L. Fox is now visiting Miss Kate Griffey, of Clarksville.

Mr. W. J. Davie enroute from Florida to his home in Louisville, spent a few days with his brother, Mr. J. B. Davie, of this vicinity.

Dr. J. R. Payne and family, of Garrettsburg, paid a short visit to Clarksville last week.

CAMILLE.

KENTUCKY KNOWLEDGE.

The Bluegrass region is taking great interest in the coming Exposition, at Louisville.

The Democratic Congressional Convention will meet at Bowling Green July 21, to nominate a candidate for the Third district.

Only 15 votes were cast in an election for town trustees, at Stanford, last week.

There are 5,750 children of the school age in Lincoln county.

One of the pleasing features of the coming Louisville Exposition is the fact that almost every county in the State will be properly represented.

Hertofore this has not been the case, and as a result the vast mineral, timber and agricultural resources of Kentucky have been but little known when compared with Tennessee and other States South. This new move on the part of the State will be one in the right direction, and will swell the tide of immigration that is already coming in from all directions.

Our State papers are doing good work in forwarding the interests of the enterprise.—Louisville Times.
